we are ACA chiropractors. Your Hands On Partner.™

> ACA is leading a modern movement of chiropractic care based on higher standards and a focus on patient outcomes.

What is ACA?

The American Chiropractic Association (ACA) is the largest professional chiropractic organization in the United States. ACA attracts the most principled and accomplished chiropractors, who understand that it takes more to be called an ACA chiropractor. We are leading our profession in the most constructive and far-reaching ways – by working hand in hand with other healthcare professionals, by lobbying for pro-chiropractic legislation and policies, by supporting meaningful research and by using that research to inform our treatment practices. We also provide professional and educational opportunities for all our members and are committed to being a positive and unifying force for the practice of modern chiropractic.

ACA members are serious about raising standards and elevating the chiropractic profession. To this end, they sign a professional pledge agreeing to adhere to high standards of professionalism, accountability, respect and collaboration. ACA chiropractors are Hands Down Better.™

Quick Fact:

Among ACA members, 89% of practicing doctors who were surveyed at our 2023 annual meeting said they are in charge of purchasing decisions or routinely "advise and recommend" purchases to their employers.

> Simply stated, by joining ACA, chiropractors distinguish themselves as leaders among their colleagues.

What is chiropractic?

Chiropractic is a healthcare profession that focuses on disorders of the musculoskeletal system (i.e., muscles, joints and bones) and the nervous system, and the effects of these disorders on general health. Chiropractic care is used most often to treat musculoskeletal complaints. including but not limited to back pain, neck pain, pain in the joints of the arms or legs and headaches.

Doctors of chiropractic practice a hands-on, non-drug approach to health care that includes patient examination, diagnosis and treatment. In addition to their expertise in spinal manipulation, chiropractors are trained to recommend therapeutic and rehabilitative exercises and to provide nutritional, dietary, and lifestyle advice to enhance overall health and wellness.

Chiropractic is a regulated healthcare profession in the United States – and has been for more than 100 years. Before being granted a license to practice, chiropractors must meet stringent educational and competency standards.

According to a survey by Gallup/ Palmer College of Chiropractic, more than 35.5 million Americans visit a chiropractor each year. The increased use of chiropractic today is due in part to the growing interest in complementary and alternative health care and the aging of the baby boom generation (which seeks to stay more active as they get older compared with previous generations). The ongoing opioid crisis has also increased interest among the public and healthcare system in nondrug approaches to pain management. Many groups, including the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, now support the use of non-drug treatments as a first line of defense against common musculoskeletal pain before moving on to prescription pain medications.

The Chiropractic Profession Is Growing

There are more than 95,000 licensed chiropractors in the United States. In addition, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS), chiropractic is a growing profession. Employment of chiropractors is projected to grow 10 percent from 2021 to 2031, which BLS says is faster than the average for all occupations.

While an increasing number of chiropractors work in integrated health settings with other types of providers, a majority (64%) still practice solo. More than 82% of all chiropractors practice in a chiropractic clinic, requiring everything from adjusting tables and other patient-care equipment to office supplies, electronic records software and more. For more information about the chiropractic profession, visit acatoday.org/keyfacts.
